WORKING FROM HOME? HERE IS HOW TO SET UP YOUR WORKSPACE

WORKSPACE

Set up a designated space with office-quality furniture. Your desk should be at an appropriate height and sturdy enough to support the weight of all your equipment. Lighting should be bright, but not blinding.

FIND A GOOD CHAIR

Every part of the chair should be adjustable. Make sure the lumbar support, elbow rests and seat height can adapt to you and the way you move throughout the day. Use a footrest or something to elevate your feet if they do not comfortably reach the floor.

LAPTOPS ARE NOT DESIGNED FOR PROLONGED USE

Laptops are not posture-friendly. If you must use one, get a separate mouse and keyboard positioned at elbow height, as well as a wrist rest. Raise your laptop or monitor so that the screen is at eye level.

LISTEN TO YOUR BODY

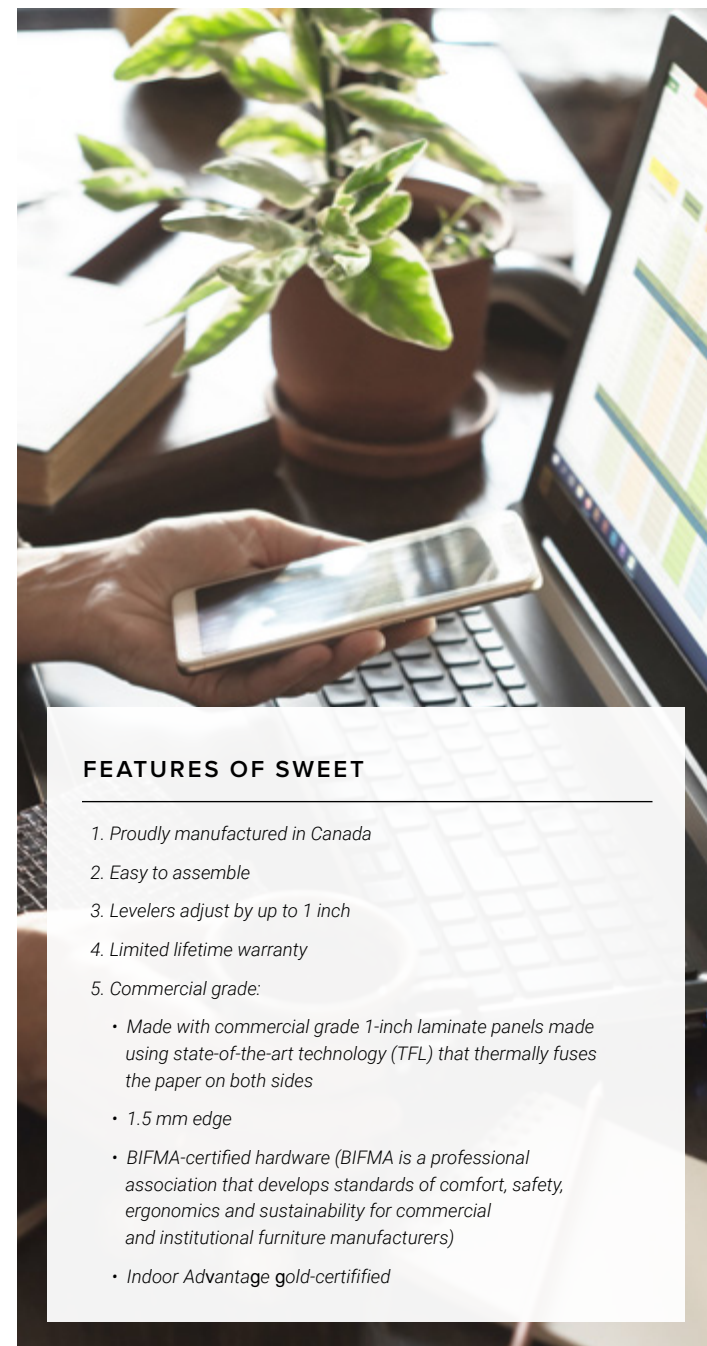

New pressure points can help you pinpoint tweaks you need to make. If your neck hurts, make sure to raise your monitor's height and use a headset or speaker to maintain a neutral neck posture when you are on the phone.

MENTAL HEALTH

Stay connected and keep in touch with your colleagues. Avoid overworking that could lead to a burnout by taking short breaks as you would at the office. A little stroll to the printer or a chat with a co-worker gives you the chance to change positions, which will not happen at home.

GOING TO WORK

Take a walk. Go for a bike ride. Meditate. Find an activity that will help you transition from work to family life.
